

NEUTRAL ZONE STRAFING MISTAKE U. N. COMMAND SAYS

SOFTENING-UP ATTACKS ARE BEING STAGED

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 11—(P)—Allied troops on a limited offensive are softening-up attacks today in four Red strongpoints in east-central Korea.

On the western front, the Communists surprisingly broke off attacks they started a week ago. Red truck traffic in North Korea finished Monday night after two days of heavy movement. In that area the Allied warplanes pounded communist vehicles mercilessly and scored some of the highest damage and destruction figures of the war.

The Allied attacks in the east are in the jagged mountains north and northeast of the Hwason reservoir and north of the old old punchbowl assembly area near the Sea of Japan coast. The Reds turned back two of the attacks. The Allies broke through two others because of darkness.

Failure of the attacks—nearly against new objectives—had no tactical significance. In the savage fighting among peaks 2,500 to 4,000 feet high it often has taken the Allies two or three times as much as 10 days to wear down sturdy Red defenses. Gains in miles have not been spectacular in the rough region—ordinarily more than five miles in one day of fighting—but the fighting has forced the Reds out of cherished positions and weakened their overall strength.

In that area Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, was giving the Reds a dose of his favorite prescription—the best medicine for the stalemate—“armistice” talks. “As the war goes on, the armistice talks will become more realistic,” he said.

Cargo planes parachuted almost tons of supplies Tuesday to the troops in the east. The Chinese attacks on the western front and their sudden shift puzzled observers at Eighth Army headquarters.

FATE OPENS CASE IN ERIE MURDER TRIAL
Erie, Sept. 11—(P)—The state opened more evidence today in its first degree murder trial of James Calvin Smith, 27-year-old laborer charged with killing his wife on an Erie street. The state contends Smith stalked to his estranged wife last July and shot her with a .38 caliber revolver. Smith says his wife led the gun from the wastebasket and was shot in the struggle for possession of the gun. The trial started yesterday.

Hof, Germany, Sept. 11—(P)—A Czech locomotive engineer made a successful dash today across the border to the freedom of West Germany, bringing with him 107 passengers in three train cars.

Apathy of Public Deplored by Civil Defense Officials

Colonel Lewis P. Acker, Chief of air observation posts of the Pennsylvania Civil Defense visited Warren yesterday afternoon and conferred with members of the Warren County Civil Defense Council.

Both Colonel Acker and W. J. Clinger, Warren County Director of Civil Defense, agreed that the world situation is critical and lamented the apathy of the public toward civil defense in this country and in Pennsylvania.

Colonel Acker told the local leaders that the communist leaders might strike at any time and that the real danger to Warren County is not from atom bombs but rather from incendiary bombs.

Mr. Clinger told his co-workers that it is time to reactivate the local civil defense program after the summer lull. He said that civil defense is not a halfway program; that if we believe in its importance, then a workable plan must be put into effect at once.

Special emphasis in the next few weeks will be to organize Warren borough with wardens, auxiliary police and firemen. Borough leaders will meet soon to make further plans and to start their house to house canvass of Warren.

Listings for Hunters' Folder Is Requested

Persons wishing to be listed in the 1951-52 edition of the folder "Accommodations for Hunters, Fishermen and Tourists in Warren County," which is now being compiled by the Warren Chamber of Commerce, are reminded that September 15 is the deadline for furnishing this information and should return their questionnaires at once, or anyone not listed before that date will be omitted.

Members of the American Legion Home Corporation Board are as follows: Mr. Vizza, Past Commander; Mr. Lundberg, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Nelson, Francis J. Buchanan, and Eugene Fring.

The only other decision to come before last evening's session was consideration of an offer to buy 31 feet of the Legion's home property lawn, just to the east of the home, and it was decided to turn down this offer.

Luncheon was served following the meeting.

Police Nab Another For Topsy Driving
Borough police arrested Claude J. Phillips, 49, of 205 Main street, North Warren, at 8:30 p. m. Monday and lodged him in the borough jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Whether it was by coincidence or Phillips was celebrating an anniversary may never be known, but police records show he was arrested September 10, 1948, on the same charge.

Youngsville IOOF Member Is Honored For Long Service

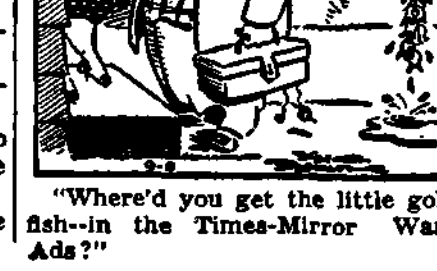

W. L. McCune, veteran member of Youngsville Lodge, No. 500, I. O. O. F., and one of the best known Odd Fellows in the district, was honored at a meeting held in the Youngsville IOOF building last evening, sponsored jointly by that organization, Kossuth Encampment No. 98, I. O. O. F., and the Past Grand's Council of Warren and Forest counties. The event was arranged as a tribute to Mr. McCune and his long service in behalf of the Three Link organization. Retired for some years, Mr. McCune is planning to become a resident at Wayside Inn, the Odd Fellows Home for the aged, at Grove City, in the near future.

A past grand of Youngsville lodge, past district deputy of the district, and active in the Past Grand's Council, Mr. McCune was lauded for his self-sacrificing service in behalf of the organization and its affiliated branches, including Kossuth Encampment No. 98, of Warren.

Merle Welsh, past grand of Youngsville lodge, and chairman of the joint committee in charge, presided. All lodges in the county except Clarendon and Sheffield were represented among the hundred visitors present, and each had a spokesman to commend the guest of honor. Among the speakers were Past Grand Master Roy H. Persons, who headed a delegation present from Franklin, and the Rev. C. C. Ross, member of Frewsburg, N. Y., lodge, and president of the district.

STAGGERING DEFENSE FUND BILL DEBATED

Washington, Sept. 11—(P)—Senate leaders expected to push through today a staggering defense money bill which would provide $61,103,856,030 to build up the United States' military might.

Senator Douglas (D-Ill.), who started the senate with an emotional outburst yesterday, planned to offer a series of amendments to cut out from $600,000,000 to $1,000,000,000.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), who said he did not intend to offend Douglas, told a reporter he expects final passage of the huge bill "without substantial change."

"I do not deny there may be opportunities to save," O'Mahoney said. "I want to avoid substituting our judgment for that of the trained military experts."

During warm debate on the bill yesterday, Douglas cried out as if in pain and hurried from the senate chamber.

Silent and with flushed face, he returned about half an hour later. An office aide, Robert Wallace, told newsmen: "He may have sounded a little hysterical because he was tired."

The senate gave tentative approval shortly later to most of the numerous changes the senate appropriations committee had made in the bill, which when it passed the house carried about $56,000,000,000.

Approval was voted for the special fund of $5,000,000,000 to expand airpower of the Air Force and Navy.

Numerous Matters of Routine Nature Before City Fathers At Lengthy Monthly Meeting

Although Borough Council members showed reluctance to abandon the plan to resurface Fourth avenue at the present time, there was little support given the resolution when it was learned at Monday night's meeting, that money for the work is not available.

After consideration of the single bid for the project, G. H. Kline-stiver, chairman of the streets committee, offered a resolution that it be accepted. Keystone Construction Company of Meadville, with a bid of $26,905.00, offered to do the actual street resurfacing at a cost of $19,305 to the borough and $7,600 to the New York Central for work to be done on and resurfacing of its right-of-way.

Mr. Kline-stiver's motion was seconded by S. H. Rasmussen and was about to be submitted to vote when P. W. Yagge asked of Leon Laskaris, chairman of the finance committee:

"Do we have money to pay for it? Is it in the budget?" "It is not!" was Mr. Laskaris' reply.

"Do we have money to pay for paving Fourth avenue without jeopardizing the financial condition of the borough?" was the way Council President W. E. Rice put the question, and went ahead to explain that he believed Council as a whole had been under a misapprehension. Council did not understand that liquid fuel tax money from the County Commissioners, which would have paid a part of the outlay, was already figured in the budget and that if the work was to be done payment for it would have to come out of the reserve fund.

Mr. Rice said the New York Central railroad had been asked in 1950 when it proposed to repair its right of way, and Council had been informed the railroad did not have the money in its 1950 budget. Then, early this year, when again questioned about the matter, the railroad, while very reluctant to do so, agreed to do the work because the borough had requested it for so long. As a result, the borough solicitor was instructed to draw up an agreement which has now been signed by the New York Central.

Mr. Rice pointed out that to do the work now would necessitate the removal of about $20,000 from the reserve fund "which we use to pay bills until the tax money comes in. We should not let this balance drop to a point where we will have to borrow as in the past."

He asked Mr. Laskaris if such a withdrawal would run the borough short, and received an affirmative answer.

VIOLATION OF NEUTRALITY IS PILOT'S ERROR

Tokyo, Wednesday, Sept. 12—(P)—The United Nations command acknowledged last night that an Allied plane mistakenly strafed the Kaesong neutral zone Monday. The Communists had not yet replied, but instead early today broadcast an official message rejecting Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's suggestion that Korean truce talks be moved to some other site. The Communist message, broadcast by the Peiping radio in the names of North Korean Gen. Kim Il Sung and Chinese Red Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, said Ridgway's proposal to move was "completely unsatisfactory and unacceptable."

Tokyo, Sept. 11—(P)—The United Nations command admitted tonight that one of its planes strafed the Kaesong neutral zone by mistake yesterday.

The Reds charged that the plane raked the site of the suspended Korean armistice talks before dawn Monday.

Iran's Ultimatum Being Forwarded

Tehran, Iran, Sept. 11—(P)—Iran's ultimatum giving Britain two weeks to resume talks about their oil dispute is being forwarded by way of Washington today, a government spokesman said.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was unable to get parliamentary approval of his move. But the premier went ahead with his plan in the face of outspoken opposition by 14 deputies who braved assassination threats to defy his policy and despite British moves to cripple Iran's finances.

The plan calls for Britain to resume negotiations on Mossadegh's oil nationalization policies or see the 300 British technicians remaining at the old Anglo-Iranian company's Abadan refinery thrown out of the country.

New Building Plans Are Discussed by School Directors

The Warren Board of Education has been advised by Lawrie and Green, architectural firm of Harrisburg, that it is endeavoring to move up its dates for advertising bids on the proposed new elementary building at Conewango and Jefferson avenues, in order that these may be opened at the November meeting of the board.

Board members received this information at their September meeting at the high school last evening, when considerable time was allotted to discussion of changes in the original building plans.

Since it would provide better lighting for the new structure, the use of glass brick, at an estimated increase of $2,664, was approved; also use of wood paneling at an increase estimated at $1,560. After a comparative discussion on celotex and gypsum for sound-proofing, the board decided to take a savings of between $1,500 and $2,000 by use of the former product. Increases on building items referred to the board by the architects were linked with the estimate that all building costs are up between two and three per cent since July 1st and prospects of any decrease are very unlikely.

Two matters which have been the subject of legislative action came before the board this month. The first, dealing with age of children entering first grade, was settled by vote of the board that put (Turn to Page Nine)

Retailers Plan Extension of Overhead Street Lights During Holiday Season

The Retailers committee of the Warren Chamber of Commerce held their regular monthly dinner meeting last evening downstairs in the Blue & White Restaurant, with fourteen members of the committee and Nat W. Drake, Chamber secretary, present.

W. H. Cannon, chairman of the Christmas Promotion and Decorating Sub-committee, reported that considerable expense would be involved in the erection of the overhead Christmas street lights this holiday season for items such as insurance, electric service, etc.

Coast Typist First Woman to Swim the Channel Both Ways

Sangatte, France, Sept. 11—(P)—California's Florence Chadwick swam across the English Channel from Britain to France in near record time today—the first woman to swim the channel both ways. She climbed ashore here even as police were investigating reports that she had been lost at sea.

Miss Chadwick, 32, reached France after 16 hours and 40 minutes in the water. She had started the swim from St. Margaret's Bay, near Dover, England, last night.

Crowds had been awaiting her at Cape Gris Nez, five miles to the southwest, and when she failed to make an appearance, there were fears for her safety.

All Sports Boosters Urged to Attend Important Meeting Wednesday Evening

Warren Sports Boosters are looking forward to a busy evening tomorrow night when they meet in the YMCA at 7:15 for their regular fall meeting.

Preliminary reports indicate that the campaign for 1952 memberships is meeting with more than average success and it is hoped the first membership report, to be made tomorrow evening, will bear out this fact. All 1951 members have received, within the past 10 days, a letter in which two membership cards were enclosed. One was for the renewal of the membership; the other card to be sold to obtain a new member for the year 1952.

Administration Critics Are Lambasted Gain by Truman in Dedication Speech

Washington, Sept. 11—(P)—President Truman said today the United States is stronger economically than ever before. He denounced as lies claims that the government is spending its way into bankruptcy.

He said those who are spreading the story of possible bankruptcy are doing it to "frighten voters—particularly as visions of elections near through the heads of gentlemen who are politically inclined."

Mr. Truman spoke at the dedication of the new seven-story limestone and granite building for the Federal Accounting Office, watching agency for congress on federal spending.

ERIE OSTEOPATH DIES WHILE DRIVING CAR

Erie, Sept. 11—(P)—Dr. Ralph L. Fischer, about 50, medical director of the Farrow Osteopathic Clinic and Hospital here, died last night of an apparent heart attack while driving his car. The auto smashed into a utility pole.

Dr. Fischer, who came to Erie in July, had served as head of the Department of Osteopathic Medicine at the Philadelphia College of Osteopathy since 1932.

Ford and Chrysler Both File Requests With the O. P. S. for Increased Prices

Washington, Sept. 11—(P)—Ford and Chrysler both filed requests for increased prices yesterday with the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS).

The office announced last Friday it would let auto makers raise new car prices by three to seven per cent, in view of increased production costs.

Other Lincolns—3.87 per cent, ranging from $69.57 to $75.06. Chrysler based its percentage increases on retail prices at the factory. The company said its boosts averaged 6.5 per cent. As announced, they included: Chrysler Windsor—$159. De Soto Custom—$147. Dodge Coronet 4-door sedan—$117. Plymouth Cranbrook 4-door sedan—$108.

General Motors is expected to file proposed new prices on its line soon. The new prices go into effect five days after OPS approval.

Indian Chief Visits South St. School

Pupils of South street school were pleasantly surprised Thursday afternoon with a visit from Walter Tecumseh Morgan, Chief Great Eagle of the Cherokee Indians in Oklahoma.

Mr. Morgan told the children about life on the reservation today, using some Indian phrases which were of special interest to his audience. He also explained the meaning of symbols on a tribal ring he was wearing, saying that it had belonged to his grandfather, Chief Crazyhorse, who fought against General Custer in the battle of the Little Big Horn. The youngest in each generation is permitted to wear the ring as chief of the tribe, he stated.

Throughout his talk, Chief Morgan emphasized the fact the greatest wish of the Indian is to be known and understood. He is a well educated individual, having been graduated from the University of Chicago. He is currently living in Youngstown, O., and has been a house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Barrett, 19 Franklin street.

First bridal bouquets were sheaves of wheat, which the brides carried while guests showered the couple with grain.

AMUSEMENTS

IN HIGH VOLTAGE COMEDY

One of the most unusual sets ever constructed for a movie was painstakingly erected on the Paramount lot for "The Lemon Drop Kid." Bob Hope's new comedy which is based on a famous Damon Runyon tale.

The film, opening tonight at the White Way Drive-In Theatre, stars Bob in the title role of a lemon-eating conner who takes over an abandoned gambling casino and sets up a bogus home for old ladies so that he can solicit funds.

But this is no ordinary casino. At the flick of a switch, the dice tables roll across the floor on a track and disappear behind the hinged fireplace; sections of wall rotate and neatly conceal the card tables; and the roulette wheel magically slides out the French doors and disappears into the garden.

Construction of this set involved more than a month and many thousands of dollars. But it was money well invested, for the set is responsible for several of the funniest sequences in the picture.

"The Lemon Drop Kid" co-stars luscious Marilyn Maxwell, Lloyd Nolan and Jane Darwell.

Pennsylvania has more miles of railroad tracks underground than the surface.

The second Warren county "Crusade for Freedom," a campaign to fight communism through Radio Free Europe, will be launched here September 24 with Dave Potter, manager of Radio Station WNAE, as county chairman. Mr. Potter served as chairman of last year's successful campaign.

Warren county's quota is $753 in funds and 5,522 members. Although the campaign's purpose is again the same, expansion of Radio Free Europe, which broadcasts to listeners behind the Iron Curtain, the procedure is to be slightly different. Instead of asking for signatures along with voluntary contributions, campaigners will give membership cards for each gift made to the cause.

DAVID POTTER

When the campaign was officially opened in New York City this past weekend, five historic bells in different sections of the world again rang out their call to freedom: Big Ben in London; the bell of Notre Dame, from the Ile de la Cite, Paris; the Freedom Bell in West Berlin; the Chang-No bell in Seoul; and the greatest one of all, the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

"Though they march and counter-march in the lockstep of totalitarianism, the people behind the Iron Curtain also hunger for the truth," said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, from Paris.

"The Crusade for Freedom is particularly effective," said Harold W. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, "because it is a people-to-people, man-to-man approach in which millions of free Americans reach through and over the Russian wall to make direct contact with the victims of Soviet aggression."

In addition to the radio station in Frankfurt and the one in Munich, the latter built with funds contributed only last year, it is hoped to extend the Crusade's operations to the Far East under the name of Radio Free Asia.

Mr. Potter said today that he will name his committee members within a few days.

A Warren concern, Nelson and Ellberg, was awarded the contract for construction of 716 feet of sanitary sewer in Division street from Redwood street to Prospect street. The bid was $2,174.25.

Mr. Klinefelter acknowledged receipt of a petition from a large number of Sylvania employees, asking that repairs be made to Lexington avenue between Irvine and Parker streets, and reported that the work is half done already, and will be completed by Wednesday.

With Mr. Klinefelter guiding the motions, Council suspended rules and passed through three readings of legislation taking over Mulberry street, extending north from Frank street 238 feet, as a public street at a width of 40 feet.

Mr. Patchen's remark that "This is something we have not done before, it requires thought" brought a statement from President Rice regarding the status of such streets. "To the best of my knowledge," he said, "we have been erroneously informed that we could not accept dead end streets. I never knew why Council could not take this action, and can find no explanation."

"Residents on such streets pay the same taxes," said Mr. Rasmussen. "There is no reason why these streets cannot be accepted if they meet width requirements."

"Council should never be bound by the characteristics of one street against another," said Mr. Rice. "The street should stand on its own merits, not on any precedent."

Mr. Klinefelter, who spoke at the previous Council meeting in favor of purchasing a stone raker which had been demonstrated to him, came to this meeting well armed with facts and figures. He stated that raking 300 feet of street had cost the borough $4.13 in a recent experiment, while a 500-foot job had been done by the raker at a total cost of $1.65. This was on a narrow street where the raker had to go around the block each time instead of turning, while on another and wider street, 948 feet had been raked in 15 minutes at a cost of $1.25. While it costs the borough $2,017 yearly to rake the 27 1/2 miles of dirt streets in the borough, use of the raker will reduce this to $732.60.

"I am carried away by your enthusiasm," said Mr. Rice, voicing the opinion of all other Council members, who voted Mr. Klinefelter permission to buy the raker for $495, to be paid for next year.

The petition of employees of the Warren Borough Street Department, asking for a wage increase of 15 cents per hour was referred to the streets and finance committee.

Petitions from eight property owners on Phillips street and eight property owners on New streets, asking the official acceptance of these streets, was referred to the streets committee.

Mr. Overturf asked for a report on Palm avenue, residents thereof having appeared before Council at its previous meeting. Borough Engineer Barwis said it would be necessary for property owners on Palm avenue to rebuild their sidewalks so the walks could be used as a leveling curb, to be driven upon if necessary as the present width of the street is but 16 feet. In answer to Mr. Overturf's query as to whether money would then be available to pave the street, a negative reply was forthcoming and Mr. Klinefelter opined that with so many streets ahead of Palm it would be unfair to pave it at only a month's notice. Mr. Barwis said Palm avenue is not included in this year's paving program.

Brackett Ayers asked how residents know when their street is in line to be paved, and Mr. Rasmussen said this work is done as the money becomes available on the streets where the work is deemed most necessary. Nick Merenick asked what priority is given and Mr. Rasmussen said priority is given to the unpaved streets which cost the borough the most for upkeep. He said he is now ready to again prepare legislation for the paving of Lexington.

Under the sewers committee, George Geracimos is to report at the next meeting on what action is to be taken to repair the sewer at the end of Oak street, something which has been before Council for several years. Borough Manager McConnell had previously reported that this work should be done while the river is at low ebb.

Mr. Smith, for the police committee, reported 630 arrests during August, 518 of these for parking violations. He reported the imposing of $1,031 in fines and collection of $1,118.75 in license fees. Meter collections amounted to $2,545.39.

Mr. Smith introduced a resolution, which was passed, granting a leave of absence to Patrolman Edgar P. Leonard for the duration of his service in the armed forces, and for 60 days after discharge.

Council passed a resolution allowing Mr. Smith to purchase, at a sum not exceed $450, two cabinets for the police department. Chief Mike Evan was present and explained his need for these filing devices, the cabinets now in use being almost too full to insert another card. These will be used for recording criminal and traffic cases.

Mr. Painter, chairman of the fire committee, reported 12 calls during August and a fire loss of $4,000 at the Harry Sellers' home. 1,950 feet of hose was laid.

Mr. Painter reported that Fireman Stephen Pees had passed his six months' probation satisfactorily, and recommended he be put on as a regular fireman. He presented the resignation of E. E. Springer, and Council passed a resolution accepting it. He requested permission to hold firemen's examinations and said a former fireman, Anthony Massa, now again employed, will be given an oral examination as he had passed the quiz previously. In response to a query about hiring extra firemen, Mr. Painter said there is no money in the budget for this purpose.

Mr. Miller, chairman of the building committee, reported permits issued for $174,700 worth of new construction during August, and $5,404 in alterations.

It was unanimously decided to give the State Public Health Department permission to again use Council Chamber and the conference rooms for an orthopedic clinic.

Chairman Yagge of the flood committee, said he would have a resolution to offer at the next meeting.

Mr. Patchen, chairman of the sidewalks committee, reported a dangerous condition existing on Madison avenue between Carver and South streets, and will report at the next meeting on whether it is the responsibility of his committee or the streets committee to make repairs.

Mr. Trusler reported that the monthly report of the Warren Water Company is on file.

Mr. Kuhre, chairman of the parks and playgrounds committee, reported an active month's work in that department, with much accomplished. He also presented the report of Mrs. Inez Rudolph, playground supervisor, and commended her for very fine work during the summer. He reported a total playground attendance of 75,072.

The request of the employees of the parks department for a 15 cents per hour wage increase was referred to the parks and finance committees.

Mr. Patchen said there is no money in sight for municipal snow removal "and I cannot see where any is coming from for allocation." He said he had talked with many residents and none was in favor of entering into a snow removal contract.

Mr. Merenick, chairman of the scales and airport committee, reported collection of $47.00 during August, and said he did not feel the lease on the airport is being carried out as it should be, that upon the return of Borough Manager McConnell some action will be taken. "The new council will have to take serious consideration of this airport matter," remarked Mr. Rice.

"Down to Earth" Address Is Delivered Before Rotary Club

"I Discover Warren County" Is Subject of Interesting Talk Delivered by Dr. McCormick

Members of the Warren Rotary Club forgot all their blue Monday cares and went fishing with a parson at their regular luncheon meeting Monday noon in the Y. W. C. A.

Figuratively speaking, they packed rod, reel and bait and went wandering up obscure runs in the county, seeking the elusive trout, with the Rev. Dr. Arthur B. McCormick as their inspirational head fisherman.

"I Discover Warren County" was the subject of a truly American way of life, down to earth talk which Dr. McCormick gave in a delightfully informal manner at the luncheon meeting.

The subject of the minister's talk is also significant of his own life at present because he "found Warren county" for himself while reaching hereabouts and decided he was here that he wanted to live after retirement. Five years ago, Dr. and Mrs. McCormick purchased their attractive home at 10 Redwood street, and when Dr. McCormick retired from the ministry two years ago after a twenty-year pastorate at Second Presbyterian church, Oil City, they came here to reside. Mrs. McCormick, until their marriage in 1900, was Mary Eleanor Olsen of North Warren.

"Over fifty years ago," said Dr. McCormick today, reminiscing of his days in Pittsburgh's Western Theological Seminary, "after my first year in the school, the church sent me up into Warren county for practical training. My vacation was to be spent in supplying the Presbyterian churches in Irvine and Clarendon. The Clarendon church was dissolved some years ago, but the little stone church in Irvine, built in 1835, still stands and ministers to the community. In that little church I was ordained to the ministry in 1897.

"One of my most cherished memories is the 'discovery' of Warren county back in the 1890's.

"It began with my first trout-trout trip. Billy Metzgar, the postmaster, took me up Irvine Run. I have never forgotten the thrill of catching my first trout. I held it in my hands and thought that a brook trout was the prettiest thing in the piscatorial world. It became a lure to entice me to travel far and wide through the county, discovering other streams. 'Down the river I went to Dunn and President and Thompson Runs. And on the other side of the Allegheny to explore Charley and Hedgehog and Slater Runs. Out to the west I went to the Andrews Run at Pittsfield, the Blue Eye at Garland, and a nameless brook at Spring Creek. That last brook was a wonder. A short stream in the valley, less than a mile from the village, full of trout, a score or more in every pool, but they were loathe to bite. I tried every lure possible, but after a day's angling I had not more than a dozen trout. I had only one chance there for some of you Warren sportsmen bought and posted the stream, shutting us ordinary chaps out.

"From Clarendon I explored the Tionesta Creek tributaries. There was Four Mile and Six Mile, the Arnolds, the Farnsworth and Wildcat. The timber had not yet been cut on Wildcat and it was an unforgettable experience to make my way slowly down through the forest primeval, the murmuring pines and the hemlocks.

"Because the distances were considerable I used often to take two days to a trip, fishing up Hedgehog or Slater, spending the night with friends I made on the Tidououte road, and then fishing down the Wildcat toward Clarendon. Those were great days, usually spent without companions, with plenty of time for observation and meditation. I quite fell in love with this county, and in these late days I am thankful for the Allegheny Forest Reservation which will preserve these tracts for future generations.

"As I recall it now after the lapse of these many years there is one thing only which I found disagreeable—and that was the rattlesnakes along the river streams, especially along the Hedgehog and Slater Runs. My quarrel with them is, that they never rattled. I could stand beside them and they would not warn me of their presence. Once on Slater, I was walking across the brook on a log, watching a fellow fishing just below me. When I got across I started to step on the bank. Something moved—and I er the Wilkins family became my good friends and their home was one of my stopping places.

"Hunting season came on in the Autumn and once again the forest trails found me seeking rabbits and pheasants, or looking for bears and hoping I would not find them!

Those 'Blue Mondays' of the 90's have left imperishable memories. Warren county is surely one of the most desirable dwelling spots in the world. One hunting trip is forever remembered. I had followed up Charley Run to its source in a huge spring at the base of a cliff. I noticed a green stone in the water, and because we have no green rocks around here I fished it out and discovered that it was a celt, the most perfectly shaped one I've ever seen. Some Neolithic man, thousands of years ago, in the Stone Age, had shaped it by patient toil and used it for his various purposes. For the past half century it has been a paper weight on my desk.

"Along with my discovery of places there came a discovery of privileges. One day a message came from a man in Pleasant

DR. ARTHUR B. MCCORMICK

Township. 'Come over here and preach to us heathen'. I went. After supper in his house we started through the woods for that little school house on the Warren-Tidououte road just beyond the end of the black top. His twelve year old boy seemed very much excited, running and shouting, now ahead, now behind us. I said to the father, 'What's exciting the youngster?' He replied, 'He has never been to a religious meeting.'

"In the congregation that night I was attracted by the eyes of a woman with an intelligent face.

After the service she came to me and said, 'I am Mrs. Mowris from Watson Township. Will you come and preach to us. I am from Scotland and am hungry for Presbyterian preaching.' So I went there, and found an entire community gathered together. They asked me to keep coming so I combined my fishing-hunting trips with my preaching services, with the Mowris home as my lodging place. There were other services in the Pleasant Twp. school, and at Limestone farther along the road, and also at Hearts Content.

"Of course I had to preach wearing the clothes with which I was dressed for the day's sport. Some years afterwards a man came and asked to be received into the church, saying, 'I began to think about religion when I saw you preaching in your gum boots.'

"I added still another place to my missionary labors—Dunn's Eddy—going there every other Sunday afternoon. I should remark that I never charged for these services and did not take up collections. One of my Dunn's Eddy men had missed several services. Meeting him one day on the R. R. track I stopped him and took him to task for his absences. His reply was, 'I tell you, parson, I don't like to go to church where there ain't no collection. When I go to meetin' I want to put a nickle in the hat—not every Sunday, but once in a while.'

"When I became pastor at North Warren, with the chaplaincy of the State Hospital a part of my work. I began to find it out of the question to carry on my missionary labors. A full-time missionary was needed. George Henderson came over from Erie and together we started out to raise the money for a missionary. Our first call was upon H. A. Jamieson at the Venturatown refinery. He said that it was a good idea and that he would be glad to give fifty dollars a year towards it. Encouraged by that we came to Warren and found other helpers, the Wetmores, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Watson, and many others, so that soon we had raised our quota.

"Then we had to find a man for the field. After trying one or two men from a distance I became acquainted with a young man here in Warren who was walking out to Hemlock every Sunday afternoon to conduct a Sunday school. I offered him the post of missionary for the whole county and he accepted it. He did a wonderful work, being so successful that he was chosen to be district secretary of the American Sunday School Union. Later he studied for and became a minister of the church. When he retired, like myself, he chose Warren to be his home in his declining days. You know him—the Rev. Frank Kehrl. No doubt, if here he would join with me in praising Warren county as the best county in the world."

W. E. Lutz, president, was in charge of the luncheon meeting, and Dr. LeRoy B. Campbell introduced the speaker. Boyd Sanden was in charge of the singing. There were two guests at yesterday's meeting, Rotarian L. Earl McLaughlin of Eldred, and Edwin Green of Harrisburg, the latter being a guest of Bert Kinney.

Commendation Is Awarded Local Man

Word comes from the U. S. Area of Responsibility, Geissen, Germany, that Captain Allan L. Lawson, son of Mrs. Lena Frank, has been awarded a special commendation by Major General George A. Lorkan, chief of the Army Quartermaster Division, European Command, for "exceptionally meritorious service" he performed while attached to the 788th Graves Registration Detachment.

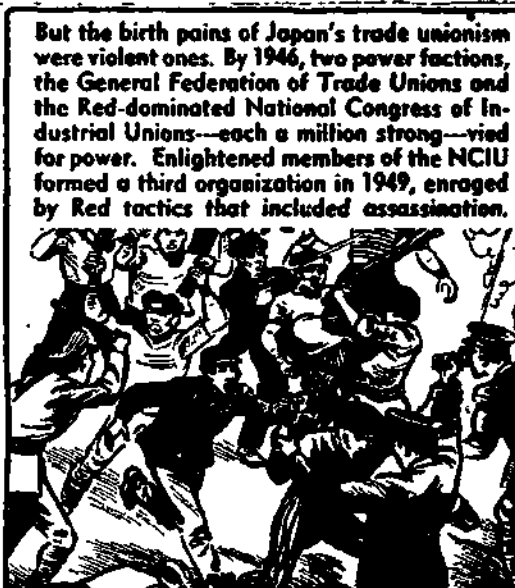

This work, concerning the return of World War II dead, took Captain Lawson and the men of his registration team behind the Iron Curtain for periods as long as a month. During all the time this group, led by Captain Lawson, was in the Soviet Area of Responsibility, there was a complete absence of reports from the Soviet declaiming any of the work going on in that sector. This lack of opposition attests the sound judgment and ability with which the search and recovery operations were carried out, his superiors feel.

Captain Lawson is now assigned as classification officer with the Reclamation and Maintenance Company stationed at Marburg, Germany. It was accomplishments of men like Captain Lawson, the dispatch states, that made possible recovery of the German national heroes Frederick Wilhelm I, Frederick the Great, and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, placed in St. Elizabeth's church in Marburg after they had been interred in salt mines by the Nazis.

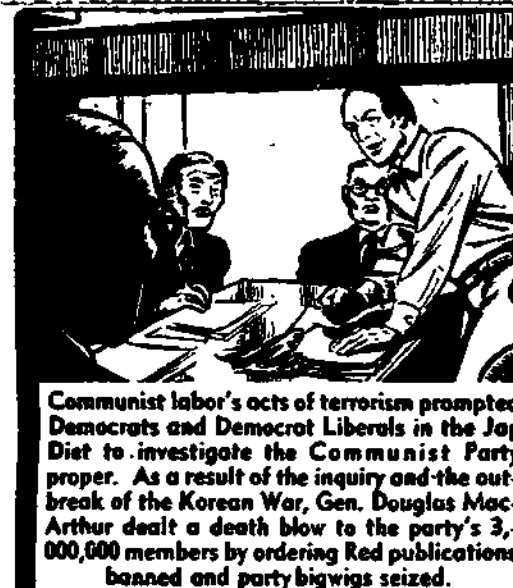

JAPAN: Rebirth of a Nation (8)

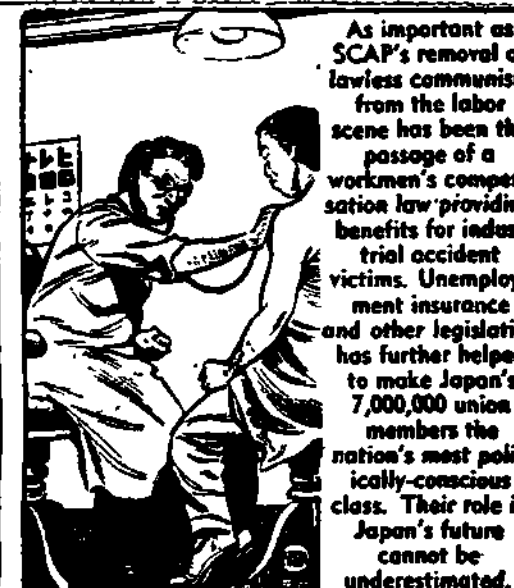

Gone from modern Japan is the coal system, the ruthless exploitation of human labor by tyrannical overlords. Under the Trade Union Law passed by the Jap Diet in 1945, which freed 2,500,000 coolies, Japanese workers were guaranteed the right to organize, bargain collectively and strike for the first time in the nation's history.

But the birth pains of Japan's trade unionism were violent ones. By 1946, two power factions, the General Federation of Trade Unions and the Red-dominated National Congress of Industrial Unions—each a million strong—vied for power. Enlightened members of the NCUI formed a third organization in 1949, engaged by Red tactics that included assassination.

Communist labor's acts of terrorism prompted Democrats and Democrat Liberals in the Jap Diet to investigate the Communist Party proper. As a result of the inquiry and the outbreak of the Korean War, Gen. Douglas MacArthur dealt a death blow to the party's 2,000,000 members by ordering Red publications banned and party bigwigs seized.

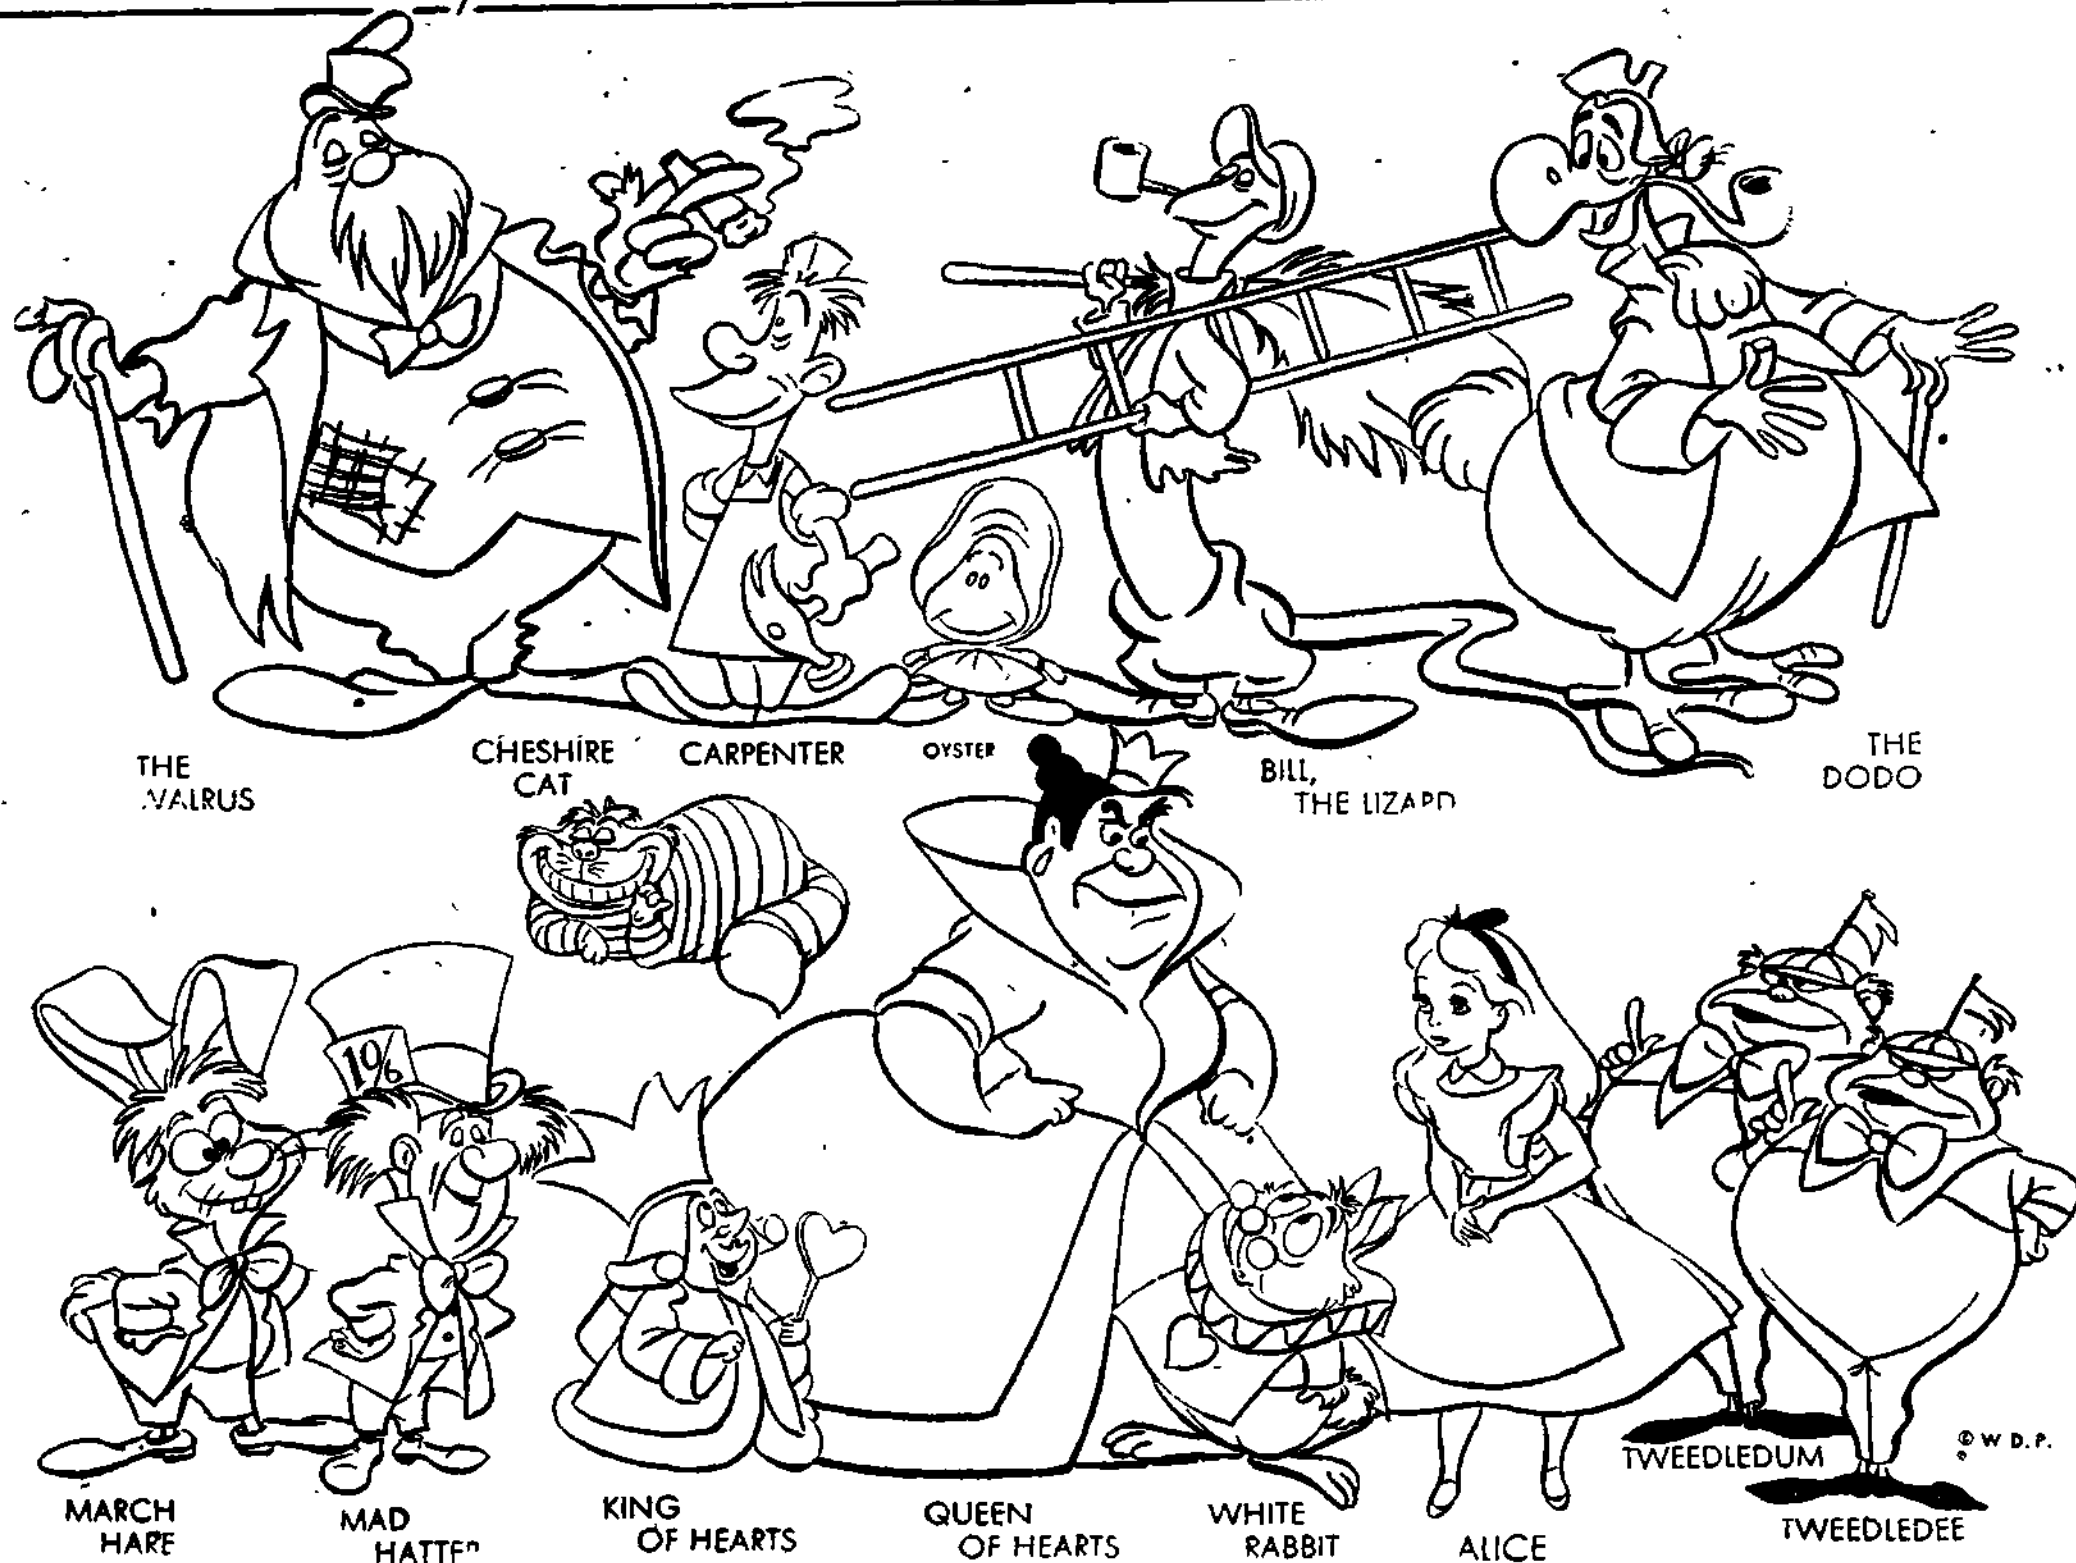

As important as SCAP's removal of lawless communism from the labor scene has been the passage of a workmen's compensation law providing benefits for industrial accident victims. Unemployment insurance and other legislation has further helped to make Japan's 7,000,000 union members the nation's most politically-conscious class. Their role in Japan's future cannot be underestimated.

Unquestionably, the need for education is greater today than ever before. And as every parent knows, education costs more, too! Textbooks, notebooks, pencils, paper... these and other school supplies cost up to twice what they used to.

But don't blame the people who make these items. Don't blame the schools. Blame the dollar! It buys less for everybody.

The dollar is squeezing the telephone business harder than ever. Costs of supplies and equipment keep going up, and up and up. Take an office typewriter, for example. The same typewriter we used to buy for $103 now costs $163... more than half again as much.

In spite of all this, we have been able to provide good, low-cost telephone service that continues to grow in value.

Even if it should cost more, your telephone service, in comparison with other things, would still be a big, big bargain.

Grace Church WSCS Has Interesting Talk - Movies

There was a large attendance at the thirteen dinner held in Grace Methodist church to mark the opening of fall activities for WSCS members.

Following dinner, a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. LeRoy Hammerbeck, when Miss Eugenia Price gave a most interesting report of the youth conference held on one of the Finger Lakes near Syracuse, N. Y., in June; and Mrs. Paul Reynolds and Mrs. Florence Anderson spoke of the meetings they attended at Chautauqua during the August Week of Missions.

After this business period, Mrs. Henry Wyman introduced the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Norman Beals, of Franklin. Wife of Dr. Norman Beals and active worker in the Baptist church, she proved a charming and most interesting speaker.

She first gave a brief story of her early life, dating from her birth in Portugal and arrival in America as a young child. Her mother was converted to the Protestant faith and reared her family in a truly Christian home, she explained. Following her graduation from college, Mrs. Beals was interested in mission work in various cities in New England.

Following her description of her early life in America and the work she was engaged in prior to her marriage, she introduced her oldest and her little daughter to the audience. They were also accompanied by two Navaho Indian boys, who are spending some time in the home of the Beals family. During this past summer, Dr. and Mrs. Beals and their six children toured the western part of the country, spending considerable time in the various mission stations of the Navaho territory in Arizona. Movies taken on the trip were shown to the Friday night audience and described by Mrs. Beals, assisted by her son.

At the close of her talk, a collection for work among the Navahos was taken, along with pledges of the members for the present WSCS fiscal year.

'In-Laws' Should Be Treated The Same as Your Own Family

WANT to get along with your "in-laws"? Then the easiest rule to follow is to treat your "in-laws" in every way just as well as you treat your own family.

Your mother-in-law is coming to visit? Then don't regard it as a tragedy unless you also feel imposed upon when your own mother comes to see you.

Your father-in-law is inclined to give you unwanted advice? You don't have to take the advice, but you can regard it with as much tolerance as you do the advice your own father is prone to hand out at times.

Your "in-laws" seem to think more of your mate than they do of you? Well, you accept the fact that you are your own parents' particular pride and joy, don't you?

Your "in-laws" don't approve of everything you do? Your own parents don't either, do they? But that doesn't make you turn against them.

Your mother-in-law annoys you by wanting to get her own or daughter off to herself occasionally? Well, don't you sometimes enjoy seeing your family just on your own, and don't they enjoy having you part of the family circle now and then?

YOUR "IN-LAWS" DROP IN UNEXPECTEDLY

YOUR "in-laws" have the habit of dropping in on you unexpectedly now and then? Well, you want your own parents to feel free to do that, don't you?

Your "in-laws" spoil the children, do they? Well, aren't you pretty good-natured about your own parents' thinking their grandchildren hung the moon and treating them as though they did?

Your "in-laws" sometimes say things that annoy you? How about giving them the benefit of the doubt, assuming that even though their words may not always be tactful, their intentions are of the best? You're that understanding of your own parents, aren't you?

GOING TO PHILIPPINES—Jerry Reynolds, JO/3, USN, and Mrs. Reynolds, in Warren for a weekend leave with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Reynolds, 820 West Fifth avenue, left Monday afternoon to motor to the Navy Receiving Station at San Francisco, where the former will receive his orders for duty in the Philippine Islands. His wife, the former Frances Counley, will return from California to their home in Kenosha, Wis., for the present. Former editorial staff member of the Times-Mirror, Jerry has been in the Navy for three years and two months, remaining at Great Lakes Station for duty at the completion of boot training.

Today's mailbag brings a copy of the Great Lakes Bulletin, which Reynolds has been editing since July, 1950. Illustrated with a picture, a prominently placed story deals with his transfer and recounts his accomplishments at the Training Center. "Fleet-footed news scooping and general efficiency helped make Jerry known as the 'rabbit' since he took the job of Bulletin editor," the article states. PAUL EVAN LEHMAN

THE second match burned out and he stood there frozen, thinking fast. The man who had dragged Judy and entered her room had snatched his coat on a nail in the window frame and the threads Brent had picked from the nail were black broadcloth threads. And this coat had been discarded, tossed to the back of the closet. And it must belong to Uncle Jim Ferguson.

A train of pertinent facts started marching across his brain. Who was better fitted to lead the three outlaw bands than the genial Uncle Jim? He was everybody's friend; he would never be suspected; he dealt in the purchase and sale of gold and would be familiar with the handling of specie. As a gold dealer he would be able to exchange stolen currency for miners' gold and then convert this into currency which did not bear the taint of theft. And because of his contacts and ability to move about unsuspected he could spot jobs for the three gangs with ease and efficiency.

The sweat which dampened Brent's brow was not altogether induced by the closeness of the air in the closet. Uncle Jim! Unbelievable but undoubtedly true. Yes, Ferguson was the leader of the outlaws, but was his name really Shell? Was he the man who had murdered Benjamin Hollister and Brent's brother Cole? Certainly he was big enough and strong enough to transport the body of his victim to the alley where it was found.

If Ferguson was Shell, why had he saved Brent from the outlaws? Reflection brought the answer to this. Brent had surprised him there in the doorway and Brent's gun had covered him. The quick-thinking Ferguson had instantly found a way of making him secure by locking him in the closet. Brent remembered the heavy door; he was as safe here as though he was in a cell. He moved to the front of the closet and quietly tried the knob. Yes, the door was locked. The door was too stout to batter down, but he could probably shoot away the lock. But Ferguson would never let him get away with that.

he'd call in the outlaws or shoot him as he emerged in order to save the five hundred dollars reward.

Judy must be here in this house. It was Ferguson who had dragged her that night, it was Ferguson who had sent the message which had brought her here. He was the one man in Destiny whom she would have obeyed.

It was silent in the office, but even as he listened Brent heard slow, heavy footsteps in the hall. He remembered the staircase which climbed to the second floor; somebody was descending those stairs. The footsteps crossed the floor of the office, he heard the slight give of springs, then came Ferguson's voice, "Then you are, my dear. You don't mind if I put this blanket over you, do you? I don't think we'll be disturbed by one never knows."

My dear Judy!

There was no answer: Judy no doubt was bound and gagged. What was he going to do with her? Set her free after disposing of Brent or destroy her too? He heard the rustle of paper, the opening and closing of drawers. It came to him suddenly that Ferguson was preparing to flee.

AND then a knock sounded on the front door. It was a peculiar knock, one sharp rap, then two softer ones, then another sharp one. He heard a chair scrape as Ferguson got up to answer it. He heard him walk across the floor and into the hall, heard him as he unlocked and opened the door. He heard Ferguson say, "Oh, it's you, Jack. Come in, come in."

They entered the office together. Jack talking as they walked. And now his voice was not level and monotone, it was sharp with anxiety. "Jim, we've got to get out-right now. Some of the boys rode along the Juniper trail and spotted a fire. They injured up on it thinking Tex might be camped there. There were twenty or thirty men around that fire and Purdy was one of them. I tell you they're closing in on us."

"And so?"

"I want my cut. I'm getting out."

"Of course. We'll have a settlement n—"

They had halted, and evidently Jack saw Judy on the couch. He asked, "What are you going to do with her?"

"Turn her loose, I suppose. She's served her purpose; she drew Tex into the net."

"A lot of good it did; he slipped right out again."

"Oh, no, he didn't." Ferguson sounded amused and proud. "I've got him safe enough. He's locked in that closet over there."

"Tex Brent? In that closet? How the devil did you do it?"

"He trusted me," Ferguson said simply. "Everybody trusts Uncle Jim. The boys were hot on his trail and I stepped outside and bumped right into him. He had a gun and was a desperate man. I brought him in—and hid him."

"Jim, are you stringing me?"

"You doubt my word? I'll prove it. Draw your gun and cover the door. . . . That's right. If he is stubborn, let him have it."

Brent heard him approach the closet and levelled his gun with the hot impulse to fire through the door panel when he had located Ferguson's position, to kill him at whatever the cost to himself. But he couldn't do that; he had to think of Judy.

Ferguson's voice came from outside the door. "Listen to me, Tex. I'm going to unlock the door and you're going to come out with your hands up. Jack will be covering you and if you don't do just as I direct he'll drop you in your tracks. And it'll go rather hard with your lady friend. Hear me?"

Brent clenched his jaws. "Yes."

"Remember, your gun in the holster and your hands up. Ready, Jack."

The key turned and the door opened slowly, an inch at a time. Brent peered through the widening crack hoping for a sight of Jack. If he could shoot Jack before Roselle sighted him, a quick leap, a whirling turn and a quick shot would spell the end of genial Uncle Jim Ferguson. But Jack was not within the range of his vision and with an oath of protest he saw the gun into his holster, raised his hands and stepped out of the closet.

JACK fell forward on the desk. Then he toppled sideways and rolled to the floor. Brent, driven by a cold fury, strained at the ropes; he ceased his struggles laying of a four-inch water main before resurfacing of the street is begun.

Two representatives from the Franklin office of the Department of Highways, Messrs. Brighton and Sayre, attended the meeting and explained the work to be done.

While the state is to pay for most of this work, a part must be paid for by property owners and it was with this in mind that a public meeting was announced. The improvement is from the intersection with East and West Main street to the borough line, approximately 4,000 feet.

Although it was said that a majority present did not favor the plan, Council decided to cooperate with the state in the work, and will go ahead immediately with the

Chapter 27

JACK stood close to the wall. He had buckled his gunbelt about him and the weapon which was aimed at Brent was not the Derringer he carried under his left arm but the heavy Colt with the pearl butt plates. Ferguson said, "Stand still, Tex, while I draw the fangs." He went behind Brent, tucked the Colt from his holster and felt him over quickly for other weapons. There was a knife and he took it. Ferguson stepped away and said, "You may sit down."

Brent walked to a chair and sat down. Judy was lying on the couch with a blanket thrown over her. There was a gag in her mouth and the brown eyes were fixed on him in an agony of fear, and desperate anxiety. He lifted the corner of his mouth and said, "Hello, honey. Keep the chair at that."

Ferguson had moved over to the desk. He had Brent's gun in his hand. He took a coil of thin rope from a drawer and tossed it to Jack. He said, "Tie him to the chair while I keep him covered. Jack caught the rope and lashed Brent's wrists and ankles to the chair.

"Just to be sure he won't interrupt us," purred Ferguson. "Now, Jack, we'll do a little figuring. Sit down here at the desk. I'll give you the various amounts and you can figure your percentage."

Jack came swiftly to the desk, holstered his gun and sat down in the chair. Ferguson said, "The amounts are right there in that book before you. There's paper and pencil you can use."

Jack reached for the pencil, drew a table of paper toward him. He opened the record book, bent his head over it to study the entries.

Ferguson raised the gun he held and Brent saw the lust of the killer flame in his face. There was no time for him even to shout a warning. Ferguson shot Jack in the back of the head and even before the boom of the shot had died was pointing the weapon back at Brent.

JACK fell forward on the desk. Then he toppled sideways and rolled to the floor. Brent, driven by a cold fury, strained at the ropes; he ceased his struggles when the gun was pointed at him. The killing lust was on Ferguson's face and Brent knew he would shoot if all movement was not instantly arrested. In that brief moment of struggle he had felt one of the knots which held his hands give slightly.

He froze, forced himself to remove his hot gaze from Ferguson and glanced over at Judy. Her eyes were wide and staring and she was writhing in her bonds. When he looked back at Ferguson the man had regained his calm and was once more the genial, smiling Uncle Jim. He bent over and took the pearl-handled Colt from Jack's holster. "I'm afraid he won't be needing this," he said. He smiled at Judy. "So sorry, my dear, but it had to be. Shotgun and Biff are gone; why should I share with Jack Roselle?"

"The same reasoning," said Brent tightly, "that you used with Harvey Stoot."

Ferguson smiled gently. "Harvey was a fool and all he did was leave that back door unlocked. It was I who did the work."

Brent was working at the knot patiently, quietly. He said, "Roselle, Cole and me had it figured right. Stoot left the door open, you came in and hid until my father opened the vault, then you forced him to carry the gold to the wagon. Harvey and my father sat on the seat and you rode in the bed of the wagon behind them. When you were far enough from town you shot them and pushed them off the seat, then drove off the road, lashed the gold on one of the horses and rode the other."

"Clever!" Ferguson said down in a chair facing Brent. "You really guessed that?"

"My brother and I together. It had to be that way. But you made one mistake; you thought Stoot was dead but he wasn't. He lived long enough to mutter two words, Shell and Destiny."

Ferguson shook his head regretfully. "Yes, I slipped up there. Your brother came to Destiny and if he had lived he would have found his man. He succeeded in doing what you have not been able to do; he followed Shotgun to this house. But he too made a mistake; he asked Lu Roselle if she knew a man named Shell. She didn't, but she passed the question on to Jack and he asked me if I knew Shell. I told him I didn't."

which was the truth. "The name is Shell, not Shell. Ferguson said."

He smiled at Brent, the two guns balanced on his knees. "I invited Cole in to have a drink and a chat. I told him to sit down and went into the back room to get the liquor. I fetched a gun instead and I shot him as I passed behind his chair. He was quite heavy, but I managed."

Brent controlled himself with an effort. The knot was giving but he must keep Ferguson talking. He said, "Are you going to turn Judy free?"

"She'll have complete freedom, but not just yet. I have some things to do first. Would it entertain you if I were to tell you my plans?"

Brent told him that it would. He thought quite a bit of himself and his cleverness and now he had an audience. "It's really quite simple. You heard Jack tell of the posse camped near town; they'll undoubtedly attack in the morning. They'll round up a lot of wanted men but the real prize will have flown."

"The buckboard is already loaded. The gold is in it, hidden in a false bottom. There's really quite a lot of it. I'll make Judy as comfortable as possible and the guards will let Uncle Jim through. I'm really forced to take her along for my own protection. Also I'm quite fond of her."

"When we're ready to leave I'll pour kerosene about quite liberally and then I'll stand in the doorway and put a merciful bullet in your brain." He beamed benevolently; as though he were about to confer a great favor on Brent. "Then I'll flip a match into the room and—woosh!" He made a wide gesture.

"Lem Purdy and his posse will see the flames and come on the run, and Judy and I will speed away in the opposite direction. It's only a hundred miles or so to the border, you know. Once in Mexico, an accommodating padre, a brief ceremony, and the distinguished Americano and his beautiful señora will proceed to scatter the pesos. We may even go to Europe. Neat, eh?" He stroked his handsome beard like a peacock preening its feathers.

The knot was giving. Brent said, "Yeah; neat."

You may be tempted to deny it at times but the simple truth is that bridge players are human beings. I do not point this out to win your sympathy for them, but just to show you how to take advantage of them.

Let's take a simple example. Today's hand was played in the recent national championships in Washington. The bidding was identical at two tables, but one declarer made his contract and the other lost it. The reason is very instructive.

At the first table, South won the first trick with the ace of hearts, laid down the ace of spades and followed with four more rounds of trump in rapid succession. West had some trouble finding three harmless discards, but he eventually released a club and two hearts. East discarded a low club and a low diamond. The net result was that South had discovered nothing.

The first declarer then continued by leading his singleton club toward dummy. West unhesitatingly played low, naturally enough. South thought about this for a while and decided that West was a good enough player to play low even if he had the ace. So South decided to put up dummy's king of clubs.

The rest of the defense was easy. East took the ace of clubs and returned a diamond at once. Dummy was permitted to win with the king of diamonds, and then South had to lose two diamonds and a heart. Down one.

At the other table, South was not technician. He just knew human nature. He won the first trick with the ace of hearts and led his singleton club at once.

At this table also West unhesitatingly played low, naturally enough. But at this table West's

MEN OF DRAFT AGE MAY CHOOSE SERVICE

Announcement today by Sgt. Jim Horony of the U. S. Army and U. P. Air Force recruiting office in the Warren postoffice building, was to the effect that all men who have had their pre-induction notice to report for a pre-induction physical examination for the draft, or men who have had their pre-induction physical, are eligible to enlist for either the Army or Air Force during September.

By so doing, they can choose their branch of service, Sgt. Horony pointed out. Men of draft age may see Sgt. Horony daily from 8:30 to 5 or may call 786 to make an appointment with the recruiting sergeant.

premise Allied Commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, said Vice Adm. C. Turner Joy, chief Allied negotiator at the truce talks, will send his Communist counterpart this message tomorrow morning:

"The United Nations command regrets this violation of the agreed neutrality which resulted from the pilot's error in navigation. Appropriate disciplinary action is being initiated."

The Allied reply notes that no casualties were inflicted and only slight damage was caused.

This is the first time the U. N. command has admitted any basis to Red charges of neutrality zone violation. The strafing charge was the 11th by the Reds.

The Allies have denied or ignored all previous charges.

The U. N. Command statement said a plane detected by Allied radar in the Kaesong area at the time of the Red-ported strafing turned out to be a U. S. bomber.

Earlier the Communists warned the Allies to accept Red terms for resuming stalled Korean truce talks in Kaesong or "bear the full responsibility for all the consequences."

They didn't say what "the consequences" would be. But it could only mean resumption of full fighting in Korea.

EXAMINATIONS FOR CORYDON POSTMASTER

The examination is open to all who are citizens of, or owe allegiance to, the United States who reside within the territory supplied by the Corydon post office, and who are at least 21 years of age, but not yet 65.

The county director stated today that civil defense plans are not meant to frighten the public but rather intended to prepare the county for eventual attack from saboteurs.

FLOOD RELIEF FUND NOW TOTALS $1,338

Red Cross officials report this morning that $1,338 has been donated to the flood relief fund for the stricken residents of the mid-west. Fred Plummer, county chairman, stated that the contributions have been most generous but that the amount contributed is still far short of the $3,000 quota. He explained that letters were mailed out on September 3rd and wished to remind those who may have neglected that contributions may be mailed to Flood Relief Fund, Red Cross Headquarters, Warren, Pa.

New Building Plans Are Discussed by School Directors

Plans must be six years old by February 1st in order to enter classes in September. The second, possibility of legislation enacting the salary and subsidy bill into law, was handled in a motion to base payroll payments on standing contracts and to make adjustments as the legislation requires.

Continuing its previous custom of granting one day of unexcused absence for hunting season, the board reminded pupils must bring parental request for such absence and show possession of a hunting license.

Permission was again granted Edinboro and Penn State to hold preliminary meetings and conduct extension classes if sufficient teachers profess interest in the topics offered. The Edinboro meeting will be held at the high school at 4:30 p. m. September 17; the Penn State meeting at the same hour on September 24.

Arrangements were discussed for cooperation with the Pennsylvania Week Committee on business and education displays, with classes dismissed at 2:15 p. m. to allow teachers to participate in industrial tours and a dinner and discussion period to follow. Council President W. E. Rice and Superintendent Carl Whipple will serve as a committee to work out details.

Approval was received from the state on tuition rates previously set by the board, allowing monthly charges of $25.41 for orthogenic pupils; $11.08 for elementary pupils; $9.61 for junior high and $3.10 for senior high.

Vocational education in cooperation with industry was discussed and views expressed by business leaders were presented. The program would involve considerable outlay in the matter of finances, and further planning is indicated before any definite action might be taken.

David Potter, recently named county chairman of the 1951 Crusade for Freedom campaign, asked the board's cooperation in securing pupil names for membership booklets.

Seneca PTA was given permission to use Beatty auditorium from 7 to 11 p. m. on December 17 for a Christmas party; and the regular use of school facilities by YWYM, Boy Scout and Girl Scout groups was approved.

Routine matters given approval included transportation allowances granted teachers; financial of extra police protection for games at War Memorial Field; increase in prices for high school and Beatty canteens; acknowledgment of residence of three boys at George Junior Republic; adjustment of janitors' salary schedule.

James E. Springer was given permission to continue the adult driver training program, with the reminder there are over 200 names on a current waiting list; and approval was given the Dan Chevrolet request to replace the car used in this program.

Board members recognized additional work done by several teachers, with Mrs. Helen Gary earning a baccalaureate degree; Jane Masters, Jean Steele, and Anna Jane Hawkins receiving master's degrees; and Marie Gaghan's new three-year standing.

The committee on finances presented current bills payable in the amount of $15,035.15 and $200.63 paid out from activities accounts. Janitors' overtime amounted to $70.88, with $540.88 for salaries; orders for the month were shown to be $31.47 for maintenance, repair and operation, with other items totaling $796.43.

Consideration was given the problem of parents wishing to send pupils to the nearest school on a private tuition basis, with the decision that classes or no more than 30 could be accommodated and any excess of 1 number must be denied. Also considered was a request of Home street residents that the board lend its signature to a petition for paving that thoroughfare.

Superintendent Whipple presented a summary of enrollments for the term, also a copy of maintenance program carried out during the summer months.

The board solicitor, R. Pierson Eaton, brought several matters to the board's attention, including an opinion on the request for transportation of parochial school pupils from the South Side area.

Intensive Armored Combat Training For 28th Division

(Special to The Times-Mirror)
Camp Atterbury, Ind.—Under the hot sun of the Mojave Desert near Death Valley, soldiers from all tank units of the 28th Infantry Division will soon be taking intensive armored combat training at Camp Irwin, California.
The division's three infantry tank companies will leave this Monday (September 10) arriving in California on September 13; the 28th Tank Battalion will arrive at Camp Irwin October 4. Both will train for approximately 45 days.
Because of lessons learned in the Korean conflict, 873,000-acre Camp Irwin was reactivated in May of this year as the Armored Combat Training Area to permit tank-infantry training that cannot ordinarily be carried out at other camps, few of which have suitable areas for the firing of long range, tank-mounted weapons.
The "Tankers" will also be given familiarization courses in the maintenance, operation, and employment of the latest types of tanks, mechanized flame throwers and other special armored equipment.
In addition, five infantry officers and sixty enlisted men from each of the Infantry Regiments will attend to take advantage of the tank-infantry teamwork and communication under simulated combat conditions.
Prior to overseas shipment with the division, men from the tank companies of the 109th Regiment (Scranton, Pa.), the 110th (Connellsville), and the 112th (Erie) will get their leaves after the exercises. The men from the 628th Tank Battalion (Johnstown) will begin their leaves next week.

Inebriate Relieves Tension at Council

Council meeting always has its humorous side, and last night a good laugh for all relieved the tension right in the middle of discussion on the abandonment of improvements to Fourth avenue.
The noisy arrival and incarceration of an inebriate could be heard all the way from Police Headquarters upstairs in Council Chambers. He wasn't protesting, just according to a loud greeting to everyone in general as he arrived for one of his periodic visits. Chief Mike Evan hurriedly left Council meeting to check the disturbance.
"This is becoming more than a coincidence," said President Rice, as Council laughed. "We've had a drunk for each of the last three meetings. Can't they arrange their arrival at another time?"
Doors were closed, the noise subsided.
